Ms. McDonald is senior counsel in the Commercial Litigation Practice Group of Seyfarth Shaw LLP. She represents clients in class actions and complex commercial litigation. Ms. McDonald has extensive experience helping clients resolve business and commercial disputes, particularly in class or collective actions. Ms. McDonald's practice includes litigation on consumer protection, contract disputes, and employment matters. She also has experience litigating financial services claims, products liability, and insurance disputes, including coverage and bad faith.

Ms. McDonald's practice includes a special emphasis on the Fair Credit Reporting Act and related state laws. She regularly defends clients in single-plaintiff and class-action litigation involving background screening. Ms. McDonald is a member of the National Association of Professional Background Screeners and serves on the Best Practices and Litigation Avoidance Committees.

Ms. McDonald has represented clients before the United States Supreme Court, the federal appeals and district courts, and various state and local courts. She is a contributor to the Consumer Class Defense Blog and a member of the CGL Reporter's Editorial Board.
