Anthony Wong Bio

Anthony is the Principal of a multidisciplinary Legal and Consulting Practice, AGW Consulting specialising in ICT including intellectual property, commercialisation and licensing, internet and cyberlaw, security, cloud computing, privacy and data protection law, ICT disputes mediation and compliance.

Anthony is a Board member of the International Federation for Information Processing (IFIP), an umbrella organization for national societies working in the field of information processing. He is the Immediate Past President of the Australian Computer Society (ACS) and Immediate Past President of the South East Asia Regional Computer Confederation (SEARCC).

He has also held senior management positions in multi-national corporations and government, including as CIO of the Australian Tourist Commission during the Sydney 2000 Olympics and led the development of digital publishing for Thomson (now Thomson Reuters) in the Asia Pacific in the 1990s.

Anthony is an advocate for the Digital Economy and serves on the IT Industry Innovation Council for the Australian Department of Industry, Innovation, Science, Research and Tertiary Education.

He is an Honorary Life member of the ACS, the founding President of the New Zealand Society for Computers and the Law, INTA, Australian & NZ Chapter of International Association of Privacy Professionals and the Law Society of New South Wales.

As President of the New Zealand Society for Computers and the Law, Anthony hosted the launch of the NZ first Privacy Act in 1990.

Anthony graduated with a B.Sc. in Computer Science and a Bachelors of Law from Monash University, Australia and was awarded a Master of Laws in Media, Communications and Information Technology Law from University of New South Wales in 2002.

Anthony is a regular presenter and speaker at numerous national and international conferences including speaking on SkyNews TV on cloud and data privacy, and the recent Microsoft Global Summit on Privacy.