Disaster Preparedness SYMPOSIUM

Are you ready?

THE PROGRAM

The severe flooding in Massachusetts and New Hampshire serves as a harsh reminder that municipalities and businesses bear substantial responsibility for both emergency preparedness and rapid response to disaster. While most affected agencies and businesses are still working around-the-clock to address the devastating effects of the worst flooding in over 70 years, the National Weather Service predicts that a major hurricane may hit the Northeast as early as this year. As far too many of us recently learned, an emergency response plan does not replace the requirement for a full and complete disaster recovery plan.

This Disaster Preparedness Symposium will offer municipal officials and business owners up-to-date insight into how the City of Gulfport, Mississippi, handled and continues to handle its response to last year's devastating Hurricane Katrina. Join us for a panel discussion featuring Gulfport's Mayor Brent Warr and Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency's (MEMA) Peter Judge for in-the-trenches guidance about getting reorganized and restarting operations when catastrophe strikes. Learn from engineering and legal professionals what you can do before disaster strikes and hear suggestions about how to implement emergency response and disaster recovery plans to minimize irreparable damage in the event of a disaster.

There is no time like the present to prepare a comprehensive disaster preparedness and recovery plan. Ask yourself one question: Are you ready?
