

3D Workplace Solution

Helping you define, develop, and defend your workplace culture.

Now more than ever, workplace culture plays a critical role in winning market share, mind share, and the war for talent.

At a time of seismic economic, generational, and social shifts, your organization can experience the effects at every level. A proactive approach to workplace culture can help you withstand these shifts, providing a competitive edge with customers, talent, and public opinion.

Building a resilient and legally compliant culture can help you:

- Establish and protect your reputation for being an employer-of-choice
- Attract and retain talent in a competitive market
- Nurture a respectful, inclusive, and diverse workforce
- Drive strong employee engagement and advocacy
- Avoid negative publicity and damage to your brand

Our 3D Workplace Solution

Whether you are a startup just building your HR and compliance function or a multinational organization with thousands of employees, we bring together the right team to help you define, develop, and when necessary, defend your workplace culture.

DEFINE

No matter where you are in the process of building or evolving your workplace culture, we can help you with assessments and audits that help you identify issues, your unique goals, expectations for your workforce, and the roadmap to success.

DEVELOP

We partner with you to build powerful, forward-looking compliance strategies that include training programs and employee relations strategies across the employee life cycle. These programs not only assure compliance, they provide a uniquely effective defense should litigation arise.

DEFEND

When crises do arise, our multidisciplinary team understands the challenges and potentially severe impact that clients face in these situations. We have the experience to identify the root cause, and to guide you from risk mitigation and crisis communication, all the way through litigation and remedial efforts.

We are with you at every stage of the Employee Life Cycle.

Ensuring a strong and compliant culture starts before day one of employment, extending through to the day-to-day nuances of an employee's job, continuing even after they leave.

How your employees function and how you as an employer protect their interests — as well as your own — is a critical, long-term endeavor, often made more complicated by changes in the business, such as mergers, acquisitions, international expansion, and new and evolving growth strategies.

Through our customized 360 approach, we help you take a holistic view of the employee life cycle, and set up the right systems for every inflection point.

Why Seyfarth?

Customized 360 Approach. Our attorneys understand that there is not a one-size-fits-all solution for workplace culture. We provide clients with a tailored and holistic project plan customized to the organization. We partner closely with our clients to develop strategic action plans to remediate existing problems and prevent future problems through the lens of compliance, risk, and human realities. We understand the advantage of getting in front of a crisis, and our attorneys have helped clients avoid crisis situations altogether through risk assessments and proactive audits to mitigation or declination of actions—helping clients emerge from situations with less impact.

In the aftermath of an investigation, we are frequently engaged on matters involving organizational change, designing and revamping complex compliance systems and processes, and developing state-of-the-art technology tools to help our clients with so much more than achieving compliance and avoiding costly, disruptive litigation. We offer a 360 approach for your workplace culture needs.

Advanced Service Delivery. Our Employment practice has been an early adopter and champion of our advanced legal service delivery capabilities, working with our allied professionals to develop of state-of-the-art solutions incorporating technology, process design, metrics tracking, and talent modeling. People Analytics. Our People Analytics team is an industry-leading group of attorneys, economists, analysts, and technologists who use powerful analytical approaches for people analytics, workforce strategy, compliance, and litigation. Our multidisciplinary team brings a wealth of experience in developing the data analyses, reporting, and metrics that employers need today. We address virtually any workplace issue to define and design effective analytics while still maintaining compliance under the law. This powerful combination of legal acumen and data analytics capabilities allows us to provide strategic legal advice and create groundbreaking solutions that yield both legal and business impact.

Working with our People Analytics team optimizes the confidentiality of sensitive analyses and reports through our use of established protocols and platforms that support the attorney-client privilege. We advise on the various strategic approaches for internal or external communications with an eye toward minimizing risk. Our approach is a seamless one that offers a cohesive client experience, streamlined communications, and deeper understanding of workplace reporting and analysis needs.

Seyfarth at Work. Through our compliance services and training subsidiary, Seyfarth at Work, we partner with organizations globally to develop core values and other high-impact internal/external messages and then deliver them through effective, engaging, and customized workplace training programs.

Future Enterprise. Future Enterprise is your concierge for navigating this new world, starting from the basics, such as defining the trends and opportunities, to identifying the legal and business solutions that will transform work as we know it. Future Enterprise is a way to connect subject matter experts and our clients—in person and through our online platform—to build upon each other’s successes and position their organizations in a constantly evolving landscape.

Virtual Solutions. COVID-19 has changed the way most companies are currently doing business, including a shift to a remote workplace for many or all of a company’s employees. Despite the new remote work environment, workplace complaints, as well as the obligation to promptly investigate them, have not disappeared. Plus, for many employers, the shift to remote work environments may not be temporary, or at the very least, will continue on for quite some time. Members of Seyfarth’s Workplace Crisis Response & Investigations practice offer customized solutions and nimble, proactive guidance to navigate conducting remote investigations.
