

Commercial Litigation

Accolades from Chambers, Legal 500, and U.S. News & World Report

Our Commercial Litigation and related litigation disciplines are recognized at a national level

Our Practice

Comprised of more than 150 litigators and trial attorneys throughout the US, our team collaborates with clients in all industries, including the medical device, life sciences, pharmaceutical, and health care-related industries to address virtually every type of complex business dispute. This breadth of experience means deep insight into the effective arguments, examinations, and themes that resonate in the courtroom. At the same time, ensuring our services hit the mark often means avoiding traditional litigation. In those situations, our team guides clients through alternative dispute resolution, arbitration processes, and settlement strategies as soon as disputes arise.

With offices strategically located across the US, we have the ability to form integrated teams to defend our clients nationally, whether that means seamlessly conducting discovery in multiple states or defending against “copycat” cases that frequently appear in the wake of initial class action filings. We also have a national dedicated trial team that has tried cases to verdict in complex matters. Additionally, Seyfarth takes a comprehensive, innovative approach to managing systemic cases. We put our vast advanced delivery capabilities into action to address thorny project management, electronic discovery, and data/statistical analysis to reach positive outcomes in complex litigation. We leverage a wide variety of internal experts, including Seyfarth’s own certified legal project managers, legal technologists, and e-discovery experts. We also work with a wide range of external expert resources to address particular litigation challenges.

Our process designers map out elements of large cases to ensure efficient staffing, and strategic alignment of team members. Our in-house data analysis and outside experts provide early analysis of damages and economic models, to perceive vulnerabilities early, create case strategies, and drive resolution where appropriate. Our client-facing project managers create value by ensuring litigation teams work efficiently, including at times where fees can spike—systemic investigations, MDL litigation, multi-jurisdictional matters, opposition to class certification, and in many other ways.

Representative Areas

Breach of contract, D&O liability, class action, ERISA litigation, anti-trust, criminal investigation and charges, product liability, SEC, fraud, breach of fiduciary duty, tortious interference, defamation, advertising and marketing, real estate disputes, bankruptcy, commercial finance, construction, data centers, energy, false claims, government contracts, intellectual property, merger and acquisition disputes, cybersecurity and ransomware and more.