2014 was an unprecedented year of employment legislation activity in the District of Columbia. The DC. Council enacted four pieces of legislation that impose stringent requirements and prohibitions on employers:

- Protecting Pregnant Workers Fairness Act
- Wage Theft Prevention Amendment Act
• Fair Criminal Record Screening Amendment Act

• Earned Sick and Safe Leave Amendment Act

What does all this mean for D.C. employers? It means, among other things:

• Changes to your recruiting and hiring processes

• Changes to your payroll systems

• Changes to your record keeping systems

• Changes to your sick leave policy

• An affirmative duty to offer pregnant employees certain accommodations

• Threat of civil litigation and heavy fines by the District government

Don’t get caught out in the cold. Join us for an in-depth discussion of how to comply with these new laws before it is too late.
